

Investment Overview

OSU Beth Ray Center Solar Project

OSU's Beth Ray Center for Academic Support, which opened in 2012, houses programs that help OSU students achieve their full potential—student-athletes as well as the general student population. The Center includes academic support and counseling services, proactive services to help students transition from high school to college-level learning, and other programs.

This collaboration between OSU, Oregon Clean Power Co-op and the Corvallis Sustainability Coalition will put 54 kW of solar on the building's roof. The solar energy it produces will eliminate an estimated 50 tons of greenhouse gas emissions annually, equivalent to not driving a car more than 116,600 miles each year.

Use of Funds

The funds raised will be used by Oregon Clean Power Co-op to pay for installation of the system, along with incentive funds from Energy Trust of Oregon and a payment from OSU. Oregon Clean Power Co-op expects to pay back community investors after two years, using funds from the sale of the federal Investment Tax Credit for the project, made possible by the Inflation Reduction Act.

This is a summary of the Oregon Clean Power Cooperative Offering Memorandum dated Nov. 28, 2023 describing the Beth Ray Solar Project, and is qualified in its entirety by reference to the Offering Memorandum. The Offering Memorandum is available on the Oregon Clean Power Cooperative website at oregoncleanpower.coop, or in hard copy upon request. You should review the Offering Memorandum carefully before making any decision to invest.

The Oregon Clean Power Cooperative is the only state-wide cooperative in the U.S. dedicated solely to renewable energy. Our member-financed projects keep capital circulating locally, create green jobs, and enable Oregon communities to become more self-reliant through locally-generated clean power.
